Officer Tzedek

A street savvy Martial Arts Rabbi Police Officer who fights intolerance and corruption in the Police Department while combating urban terrorism using mostly ecumenical Torah and martial arts wisdom. The films will portray how Rabbi Police Officer Gary Moskowitz is able to turn around some police officers and gangsters into men/women of peace and spirituality by teaching them how to reach out and help others as spiritual therapy for themselves. Simultaneously Officer Tzedek learns and grows personally from the experience. The movie introduces Mental Judo as a viable method of street practicability, slick entertaining action drama scenes without using brutal violence (using mostly non-lethal defenses) and the innovative concept of the religious Justice League of Divinity which is the secret esoteric group made up of religious leaders from several faiths and beliefs who are expert martial artists and philosophers who meet to train the mind, body and spirit in the pursuit of peace and fulfillment while battling criminal gangsters.

Comments: Dr. Brenda Shoshana Lukeman - Psychologist/Author/Playwright

Gary combines high integrity, idealism, and the unique capacity to always be available to those in need. His indomitable spirit rises above the chaos and confusion that surrounds us daily. He will not be daunted in his search for truth, honesty, Justice and fairness to all. Gary is a man worth of being heard and listened to carefully. He is a character full of intensity. Hollywood would be wise to bring him to the public eye.
